

[Wk 6 OUEC Event]: Introductory workshop on filmmaking for travellers and researchers

Thu 23.2.23 12:10

To: ouec@maillist.ox.ac.uk <ouec@maillist.ox.ac.uk>

Afternoon All,

This is a reminder of our event in Week 6, with key details below:

Workshop name: An introduction to creative, technical and organisational practices of film storytelling for travellers and researchers.

Convenor: Ben Cook

Date and time: Saturday 25th February, 10am-4pm

Location: School of Geography and the Environment. Map here: <https://what3words.com/silks.swim.wash>

Cost: Free for Club members; £7 for non-members (it is possible to pay membership on door - £10 for Term, £20 for Year, £35 for Life)

Description: In this full day workshop giving an introduction to filmmaking for travellers and researchers, we will cover the importance of story, planning and organisation, cameras, composition, sound, interviewing, light and the practical and safety elements of location and environment. We may also have time for some post-production work (e.g. editing) but the focus will be on the filming elements. Please bring along any camera you have that you would plan to use on a trip, which could be a camera phone. If anyone has any, you'd also be welcome to bring any sound recording equipment (microphones, dictaphones etc.) as well. Ben will also be bringing a host of equipment, so anyone without a camera doesn't have to worry! In addition, please bring something small that means something to you. It could be a work of art (book, record, film), a gift, photos etc..., but it must be something small!

James

James Kempton | Christopher Welch Scholar
Department of Biology | University of Oxford
james.kempton@biology.ox.ac.uk
+44 7954683094

Oxford University Exploration Club Chairman